Downtown development off shelf

LIVERMORE — A plan for downtown development comes off the shelf 7:30 tonight when Planning Director Howard Nies expects to urge planning commissioners to avoid a precise plan that could prove too rigid.

The Central Area Development Plan (CADD) is a document which outlines long range revitalization of the downtown area which could affect many businesses along First Street and other areas.

New planner, new push for business here railroad tracks and First Street, L and P streets.

Nies still wants the super block, but he doesn't expect it to affect any of the established businesses in the area.

"If the planning commission agrees with the approach I am presenting," he said, "my staff will develop a central plan in one or two months."

The original plan map showed specific buildings in specific places, where buildings would traverse the airspace over several streets that are closed off to through traffic for parking and pedestrian traffic.

Nies still wants to keep the major street circulation plan on the map. He also wants to take some of the General Commercial (CG) zoning that allows warehousing and wholesaling near the railroad, and change the zoning to a Central Business zone that would encourage retail shopping.

Nies also favors lopping off the extreme East and West sections of the designated downtown area from the plan. The area east of Livermore Avenue and the area west of Fenton, said Nies, just don't fit into the same patterns as the rest of the downtown section and should be guided by a different standard.

Sunol nature study ends in death on cliff

"It's like climbing down the Empire State Building," Sunol Regional Park supervisor Dave Lewton said yesterday of the steep and sandy cliff face where a 17-year-old student fell to his death Sunday.

The Lafayette teenager, David Haydon, fell about 200 feet down the steep cliff. He was pronounced dead at the scene by a county coroner. He and a friend had been taking a 9-to-4 shift on top of 1,360-foot Flag Hill as part of an Audubon Society project, protecting the nest of a rare bird.

According to naturalist Lewton, the birds build a nest each year on a tiny ledge on the face of the cliff. Despite the climbing skill needed, someone would regularly snatch the young birds before they could fly, until the Audubon Society established their patrols several years ago.

The youth reportedly decided to go over the edge of the cliff to photograph the bird in their nest on the ledge below. He lost his footing and tumbled to the rocky ground.

His companion radioed for help on a citizens' band set provided by the East Bay Regional Park District. The park district's rescue helicopter, which was in the area, landed at the spot in less than 15 minutes, Lewton reports, but its trained crew were unable to save Haydon.

The boy's father, Richard Haydon, a Lafayette insurance agent, described his son as "a big naturalist. He worked at the Alexander Lindsay Junior Museum in Walnut Creek. He started sweeping the floors and wound up as curator in charge of the big birds."

His father said David had plotted and photographed eagles' nests around Mt. Diablo. He was to graduate Thursday from Del Valle High School in Walnut Creek.

Audubon members are continuing to patrol the cliff to protect the young birds from marauders until they can fly. The program is carried on in cooperation with the East Bay Regional Park District, which provides four-wheel-drive transportation up and down the hillside, water and portable toilet for the volunteers during the six weeks or so they are on patrol.

The area where the accident occurred is not visible from the Sunol Regional Wilderness parking lot and is on the opposite side of Flag Hill from the site of the annual "Bunker Hill Day" race.

This traditional contest, scheduled for 10:30 a.m. Sunday, will take place on the gentler eastern slope.

No charges yet in tense kidnap case

LIVERMORE — An AWOL army sergeant who allegedly held a Hayward woman hostage at gunpoint for two hours Saturday night before surrendering to police is awaiting formal charges in the case.

James Franklin Sams, 39, reported AWOL from Ft. Lee, Va., turned his gun over to police following the kidnapping.

The hostage, Julie Ellen March, 20, was unharmed.

Sams was scheduled to be arraigned yesterday on kidnapping charges. But spokesmen for the district attorney's offices in Hayward and Livermore said they were not sure where the charges would be filed, since the woman was kidnapped in Hayward and held hostage in Livermore.

According to police, Robert Garrett of Murdell Lane in Livermore called police and said his daughter in Hayward had reported the kidnapping of her friend, March. Police attempted to confirm this with Hayward police when the suspect vehicle was spotted on Murdell.

Police followed the car to Holmes where they bottled it up, forcing it to stop. When the driver raised a gun to the head of his woman hostage, police allowed the car to proceed.

Officers again boxed the car in, this time at Holmes and Alden. Officer Jack Stewart put his patrol car in a broadside skid and slammed into the car, while Officer Gaylen Johnson purposely collided with the rear of the vehicle, pinning it in place.

Sams is being held at Santa Rita Jail pending arraignment.

New claim against jewel heist suspect

MAUI — Following the dropping of federal interstate transportation of stolen goods charges, an 18-year-old Livermore man last week pleaded not guilty in Hawaii state court to new charges of burglary and theft.

Accused of being involved in a $400,000 jewelry heist Feb. 21 is Fred Sanders Matheny, of 1428 Elm St.

Matheny was arrested in Livermore March 16 by local police and FBI agents armed with search warrants. They reportedly found in the suspect's possession a gold ring and the inscription "LoH" inside the ring.

The ring was traced to the robbery of the My Son's Jewelry Store in Maui, which owns the firm Lapidary of Hawaii (LoH).

A jury trial has been scheduled for Sept. 19.

Allen backs plutonium lifts

LIVERMORE — Air shipments of plutonium would be safer than land transportation methods, BART Director Robert Allen says.

Allen has added his voice to the plutonium shipment controversy by sending his comments to officials in Washington, D.C. A copy was mailed to The Times.

Plutonium, the most dangerous nuclear material in use, is shipped by land and air to the Lawrence Livermore Laboratory to aid in the development of nuclear weapons.

Since the public learned in April of the flights, some have called for a moratorium on air shipments. Rep. Pete Stark prodded the Energy Research and Development Administration (ERDA) to develop stricter rules on air shipments in late May.

ERDA recently asked the public to send its thoughts on the subject to Major General James K. Bratton, director of military applications in Washington, D.C.

Last week, Allen wrote a short letter to Bratton recommending that nuclear materials be shipped by air "wherever possible."

"Security problems and costs would seem to vary with transit time and the chance for public access to the vehicle. Air shipment greatly reduces both," Allen wrote.

Unmarked, heavily guarded trucks are used to transport nuclear materials by land.

"A shipment in the isolated environment of an airplane should be far safer and more secure than if commingled with other traffic and vehicles on our highways and rail lines."

"Nuclear components and materials should move wherever possible by air in planes not carrying passengers, to and from airports where proper security to and from the end points of a route is achievable," Allen concluded.

Nuclear materials are shipped in the Lawrence Lab's F-27 aircraft in and out of the Livermore Municipal Airport. Airport officials are not notified of any flights in advance.

An average of seven truck shipments are made each month. Only one air shipment of plutonium was made to LLL in the last year. Seven shipments were made in the last 13 months, Lab officials said in April.

Future of gravel pits

PLEASANTON — The first public report on a 50-year plan aimed at reclamation of the gravel pits will be given before a Chamber of Commerce Tuesday luncheon meeting.

Richard Karn, representing the firm of consulting engineers which prepared the report under contract to the four major gravel extractors operating in the Valley, will outline alternative uses for some 2000 acres of ground now being mined for sand and gravel.

The report looks to several stages of possible public and private use of the depleted pits, up through 2025 when quarrying along Stanley Boulevard is expected to end.

The chamber meets at Hap's Restaurant, 12 noon, and the no-host lunch is open to the public.

Bank boycott

A strike by Loomis armored car personnel yesterday left many Valley bankers frantically phoning around for another courier service to the federal reserve bank in San Francisco.

Robert Philcox, vice-president at Pleasanton First National Bank, said the Loomis strike won't cause any problems for bank customers, but it will raise havoc behind the scenes at banks that depend on Loomis.

Housing progress

Progress reports on the Komandorski Village playground project and the future sewer connections for the new Komandorski village will highlight the agenda when the housing authority commissioners meet at 8 p.m. tomorrow at Kottlinger Place Community Building, 240 Kottlinger Avenue.

Birdie Bianchi

Mayor broke council tenet, she charges

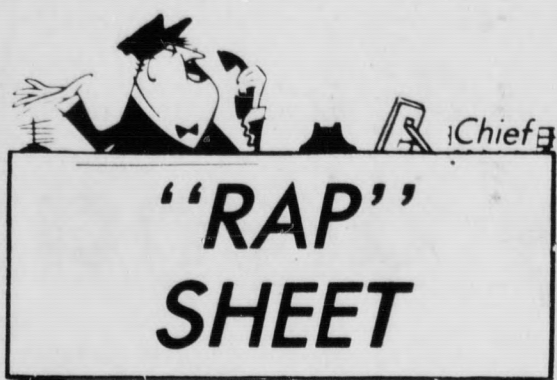

PLEASANTON — CARD Committee member Birdie Bianchi claims that Mayor Robert Philcox violated the city council's policy on press releases last week in his statement denouncing her city watchdog organization.

When a city council members speaks out, he or she should make it clear it is the person's own opinion. Also, no city stationary or other city effort should be used in the press release, says the city council policy.

Philcox violated both those tenets when he urged citizens to not sign the CARD Committee's petition to referend the council's signing of an agreement to finance the LAVVMA pipeline, said Bianchi.

Philcox issued a press release through city hall and by using his title of "mayor" at the top of the release, Philcox gave the impression he was speaking for the entire city council, when, in fact, he did not consult council members, said Bianchi.

Philcox said yesterday that he did all of the writing of the statement at home, but did give it to City Hall secretary Doris George to copy and send out with the city council packets to other council members. He also asked George to notify the press by telephone from city hall, which she did.

Battery suspect fights arrest

LIVERMORE — A 34-year-old Woodlake man, accused of beating up a security guard and the manager at Holiday Inn Saturday night, allegedly kicked a police officer who finally forced the suspect into his patrol car.

Jerry Michael Hixon was booked on suspicion of battery, assault with a deadly weapon and battery on a police officer.

According to police reports, manager Allan John Souders refused to allow Hixon entry to the bar because it was full. Hixon reportedly pushed Souders aside and sat down at a table.

Souders and security guard Al Dean Davis approached Hixon and asked him to leave. Hixon and his party of three agreed to leave, when Hixon allegedly struck Souders. Two persons then started beating on Davis.

Souders was knocked to the ground after sustaining at least five blows, police said. Davis was reportedly forced to the ground, kicked, and hit on the head with his own flashlight.

Police were called and found Hixon at the bar. The suspect denied any knowledge of the attack.

As Officer Barry Foye led Hixon away, the suspect allegedly struggled in an attempt to strike the victims of the earlier attack. Foye was kicked three times and received a cut hand.

Radio Shack in Dublin burglarized

DUBLIN — Four persons who entered Radio Shack Thursday to defend the consumer rights of a man they had never met apparently walked off with $230 from the store's cash box, deputies report.

Two couples came into the Dublin Boulevard store and began arguing about the workability of an FM converter a customer had purchased earlier. The debate grew into a shouting match that lasted 30 minutes.

After the issue was resolved and the store cleared, owners discovered the theft.

Deputies investigated and found that the disgruntled customer did not know his defenders, but met them in the store's parking lot. One suspect saw the man struggling with the unit and agreed to help. Officers think the argument was a ruse to cause a distraction while accomplices stole the money.

Deputies are searching for two black men and two black women who drove off in a green Chrysler.

Wrong-way bicyclist gets leg broken

LIVERMORE — A 16-year-old bicyclist traveling the wrong way on Murrieta Boulevard Saturday afternoon collided with a car and suffered a broken leg, police report.

According to reports, Jeffrey McCorkle of Calais Avenue was riding his bicycle northbound on Murrieta about 12:30 p.m. when he struck a Cadillac driven by Stephen William Yatso, 16, of Fordham Way.

McCorkle is reported in good condition in Valley Memorial Hospital with a broken left leg. Police indicated they will mail him a citation for riding against traffic.

Doctor's office burglarized; suspect arrested

LIVERMORE — The burglary Friday of a Barcelona Street doctor's office was solved when a Livermore woman found a box of prescription pills in her grandson's bedroom, police reported.

A window to Dr. Daphne Chisholm's office had been pried open sometime Friday. Several jars of pills were taken.

A woman later contacted police to say she had found a box of prescription pills in her grandson's bedroom.

Under police questioning, the 15-year-old allegedly admitted committing the burglary because he "had nothing to do." He was booked on a single count of felony burglary.

Radios taken from two cars on Silvergate Drive

DUBLIN — Burglars made off with two radios and two tape players after prying open windows to two cars parked on Silvergate Drive early Saturday.

A J.C. Penney's brand citizens band radio and Audio Vox 8-track tape player were stolen from Paul A. Langston's car. John D. Huffines of Danville reported the theft of a Craig brand am/fm/cassette deck and an 8-track tape player. Total value of the items was set at $350.

Deputies lifted three fingerprints from Huffines' car and two from Langston's. The investigation is continuing.

City's heritage heroes hit with a new song

LIVERMORE — Members of the city's heritage preservation commission came back from a trip to Sacramento Friday loaded with new information they expect to use in a campaign to start a preservation ordinance for this city.

Livermore Building Inspector Herb Street and four commission members met for several hours with Sacramento's preservation director and chairman of that city's preservation board.

"It was really worthwhile," said Street. "They've been through this and had little hints about things to avoid and look for."

"They've burned their fingers a few times and told us which stove burners to avoid."

Commission members attending were Chairperson Anita Thorsen, Gary Drummond, Roberta Hadley and Gloria Taylor.

Objective of the group is to develop a working plan to show city council when seeking approval of a grant application that could fund a local historical resources survey.

Included in the documents brought back from Sacramento were copies of various ordinances dealing with heritage preservation, copies of that city's consultant's report on the Old Sacramento restoration project, alteration guidelines and a glossary of evaluation terms.

Various categories, used by Sacramento include locations with historical and cultural significance, architectural significance, environmental significance and design integrity.

Street said he had not started to read the documents, but noted one interesting brochure prepared by Sacramento officials which shows how to conduct a title search to find the history of a building, including trips to the assessor's office and other places to ferret out the information.

The meeting was arranged by the state office of historic preservation, as a follow up to last month's visit to Livermore by a state representative who explained the procedure for applying for the funds.

Stark's track record on energy

WASHINGTON — As President Carter's energy program goes into its second week of legislative tests, Ninth District Rep. Fortney Stark, (D-Oakland) is in the thick of things and so far, at least, opposing Carter on all major votes.

Most parts of the President's energy package are now before the House Ways and Means Committee, the unit which rules on all tax proposals. Tax incentives and disincentives are the major tools Carter has proposed in his quest for conservation.

Stark first elected in 1972, has served on Ways and Means since early 1975. Until this year he was part of what was known around the Hill as "The Front Row," that group of very junior, generally liberal Democrats whose presence was said to have dissuaded former Rep. Wilbur Mills (D-Ark.) from even attempting to hold his chairmanship after he had been politically weakened by scandal. Still a member of that group philosophically, Stark this year moved up to the first seat in the back row.

His first run-in with the Carter package came last Tuesday on a relatively minor proposal which had — until then — been considered uncontroversial: the home insulation tax credit. That provision involves a reduction in taxes of $400 for homeowners spending $2000 or more to insulate (or of 20 per cent of any costs under $2000).

After the committee had spent hours discussing and voting on fine points of the idea (disallowing vacation homes, for example), Stark suddenly moved to strike it entirely. He said the credit would be basically for the rich, and that no such incentive was needed to encourage them to insulate.

The provision, he said, is a "classic case of cluttering the tax code with more subsidies than are probably necessary," a practice Stark believes the Congress engages in frequently with regard to business.

To the surprise of most, Stark's move came within one vote of carrying.

The big day for the energy package, however, came two days later, when the committee approved a slightly watered down gas guzzler tax but defeated the rebate on small cars and (without even debating it) the stand-by gas tax.

None of the votes was really close, and the only action to set the packed hearing room buzzing was Stark's attack on the auto industry. Arguing that it is only the industry's selfishness which prevents it from turning out cars as efficient as European cars, Stark said the industry is a "blight on the face of free enterprise. (It is) arrogant, unpatriotic and indifferent to the safety, health and environment" of Americans.

Stark said Detroit cars are "seriously sloppily designed," but he went out of his way to exclude laborers from his criticism. "They are so efficient, the foreign companies want to come here to make their cars."

"I just want people to know who the real criminals in this country are," he said.

Later, Stark entered into a strange coalition with the auto industry defenders on the panel. The latter had been trying to kill the gas guzzler tax entirely because they thought it was unfair to Detroit. Stark joined them — as the sponsor of their bill among the liberals — on the grounds that conservation should not be achieved by a tax on consumers but by mandating that the auto companies simply stop making gas guzzlers. His co-sponsors definitely did not agree with that.

However, in a head count of his own, Stark had found a bare majority (19) on the committee who agreed with idea.

Evidently, though, some in that majority saw no hope of that position ever carrying in the full House. The Stark-Detroit position lost 23-13.

Stark has said the backbone of the energy conservation program should be rationing.

"I think people are ready for it," he said.

"Look at the way people in the Bay Area are accepting water rationing," he said. From a district in which about 80 per cent of the people are experiencing rationing, Stark said he has received only one complaint about rationing.

The Ways and Means votes continue this week on other energy taxes such as those imposed at the wellhead.

Board to act on hill road

Alameda County Bureau

OAKLAND — The thorny question of abandoning Santos Ranch Road comes before county supervisors this morning for a public hearing that could leave it in the hands of local property owners.

If the board agrees to abandon the twisting road up the eastern side of the Pleasanton Ridge, maintenance and liability will fall to the handful of homeowners.

Board members last year ordered a locked gate installed.

But this year the public works department is pressing supervisors to get rid of the road.

Pressure started with the Pleasanton City Council after a series of auto accidents — including at least one fatality.

Council members pushed for county abandonment and the locked gate.

By keeping it locked and in the county's road inventory, the public is subsidizing an essentially private road, they argue.

But homeowners on the ridge say their property is predicated on a public thoroughfare.

Queen

Eleven-year-old Kim McCarthy of Pleasanton will preside as Rodeo Queen at the 15th annual Kiwanis Junior Rodeo scheduled for this Sunday at the Rowell Ranch off I-580 in the Dublin Canyon. Festivities start at 9 a.m. with the Grand Parade. Kim is a student at the Sunset School for the Handicapped. The Junior Rodeo has raised more than $30,000 in the past 14 years. The money goes to charitable and youth activities of the Kiwanis, principally the students at Sunset School. General admission tickets are $2.50 with children 9-years-old and under admitted free.

Dublin annex — old idea needs new study

PLEASANTON — Annexing Dublin to Pleasanton is an idea that's been around a long time, but it's latest rebirth needs study, according to Council Member Joyce LeClaire.

Alameda County Supervisor Fred Cooper kicked off the latest "annexation" talk in a story in The Times Sunday. He feels that Dublin, at 17,000 population, can't grow much as a city if it incorporates on its own. The maximum would be around 20,000 and that's not enough administration, he believes. A report of the Local Agency Formation Commission a few years ago said the same thing and recommended that if Dublin urbanizes, it should annex to Pleasanton.

The combined city would amount to 47,000 right now with a growth potential of 68,000 people by 1995. In Cooper's eyes, that's a good, efficient city population.

He said, "100,000 is ideal, but anywhere in the 50,000 to 150,000 range is good."

Above that, your top managers lose track of what's going on. Below that, you don't have the efficiency of scale."

LeClaire said yesterday that there are obvious advantages and disadvantages to annexing Dublin. Off the top of her head, she guessed that Dublin's attractive commercial development would bolster the tax base of a combined city.

On the other hand, it would cost more in services if Dublin leaves the Alameda County and VCSO setup, she said. You'd have to do a thorough cost analysis to see just how it all comes out.

Asked whether Dublin could ever be integrated psychologically with Pleasanton, LeClaire pointed out that the 580 freeway would always present something of a barrier, but annexation would give Dubliners more of a sense of community than they have now.

"I don't think that Dublin residents feel in touch with the county," she said, adding they do have good rapport with the VCSO Board of Directors for the services that group provides.

Another thing to consider is the "small town" attitude in Pleasanton, she said, though annexing Dublin may not really affect it. "That small town feeling is important to me and I've heard that comment from many Pleasantonites, so we'd have to check that out, too," said LeClaire.

Tim Baldwin, a leader in the "incorporate Dublin" effort, told The Times that some Dubliners already have spoken out on annexation. A Boy Scout troop polled 500 in the community and asked that if all other factors are equal, would residents want to annex to Pleasanton or go it alone. Two-thirds voted for an incorporated Dublin, one-third for annexation to Pleasanton, said Baldwin.

Sweating it out for Mr. Universe

Dan Wallner isn't just another pretty face. Behind his awesome facade of rippling muscles and curly blond locks lies an intelligent mind, and the articulate 25-year-old doesn't beat around the bush.

"My goal is to be Mr. Universe 1980," he says simply.

A native of Livermore, the Granada High School graduate is a construction worker in San Jose by day and a body builder by night. Grunting, panting and sweating, Dan follows a steadfast routine that has increased his glistening chest from 40 to 50 inches and his bulging biceps from 13 to 18½ inches — in just three years.

"After high school you slow down a lot," Dan points out. "I decided to go into body building after seeing a couple of contests on TV. I liked the idea of looking that good and achieving it myself without a coach."

Dan works out six days a week at the Grecian Health Spa in Livermore, alternating routines that build different parts of the body. Arms and legs are his focal point on Mondays and Thursdays, while his chest and neck get complete attention on Tuesdays and Fridays. Wednesdays and Saturdays are back and shoulder workouts.

"It takes a lot of blood, sweat and tears," agrees Dan, as he describes the high protein, zero carbohydrate diet he begins in July in preparation for the Sept. 17 Mr. Pacific Coast contest in San Francisco. "I hope to place high in that contest," he states, explaining that he has to compete in local contests "to build up self-confidence." The diet, which will include 12 eggs, four cans of tuna and half a chicken daily, will strip off any lingering fat tissue "so that the muscles will really show" for the competition.

A contestant in a recent Mr. Bay Cities match, Dan contends that body building has become "almost like a sub-culture." More women turn out for the contests than men, he smiles, "and they're really packed in."

The "clique" who is interested in body building, says Dan, see it as a sport and an art combined. "I lift weights but when I'm in a contest I'm posing," he explains. "You present yourself instead of the weights."

An avid reader of magazines on muscular development, the construction worker laughs when people ask if he was once a 90-pound weakling. "I was a little on the lean side, I guess," he recalls. "But I was pretty muscular since I was a swimmer in high school."

Now a pill-popping, acknowledged muscle man — he takes up to 100 food supplements a day — Dan spends much of his spare time organizing a musical group. The rock 'n roll musician plays the organ, guitar, bass and harmonica. "And I sing, too," he adds modestly.

Looking toward the future, Dan foresees entering "as many contests as it takes" to win the Mr. Universe title, a goal that is still possible even after 40. "A man can be in top condition at 45 and win the Mr. Universe contest," declares Dan, whose family "backs me 100 per cent."

The bachelor enjoys dating and admits having little trouble finding girlfriends. "I have women who are really turned on by me, but there are some women who don't pay any attention," he says, shrugging his shoulders.

"Most women are at-

Dan Wallner says it takes "blood, sweat and tears" to make it to the top of the body building empire. The 25-year-old has trimmed his waistline by three inches in three years, but has increased his chest measurement by ten. Dan works out six days a week in hope of obtaining the Mr. Universe title.

FAREWELL TWINKIES, HELLO SPROUTS

"Nutrition the Natural Way" was the title of a conference on nutrition I attended this weekend in Berkeley.

World famous author - nutritionist Carlton Fredericks spoke of the public's confusion about nutrition and health because of the contradictory view constantly being presented.

As an example of the controversy, Dr. Fredericks recommends a high protein diet. The next speaker on the program, Paavo Airola, award winning bio-chemist and author of 11 books on nutrition, is a vegetarian who thinks the optimum diet consists of grains, seeds, vegetables and raw fruits. He believes that vegetable oils should not be used for baking or cooking, as they become cancer-causing when heated to over 350 degrees.

Dr. Airola says that ammonia is a by-product of the digestion of meat. The resulting irritation to the colon figures in cancer. For excellent health, one must have good nutrition, sufficient exercise and a positive state of mind, says the well-known researcher. All three must be observed.

"It is better to eat junk foods and exercise a lot, than to eat health foods and not exercise at all," declares Dr. Airola. "But more than 25 grams of protein per day is dangerous."

Dr. Emanuel Cheraskin, chairman of the Dept. of Oral Medicine at the University of Alabama, has authored more than a dozen books, and hundreds of articles on nutrition. His newest is a best seller entitled "Psycho - Dietetics."

"We are no better than our ability to heal," states Dr. Cheraskin. He has proven by research on human subjects that Vitamin C in mega doses speeds up healing dramatically. He recommends high doses of Vitamin C. Smokers need more Vitamin C than non-smokers, says Dr. Cheraskin, because smoking interferes with its absorption. Women on the pill need more vitamins, especially Vitamin C, than others, and in larger amounts, to "vaccinate" against the side-effects of the pill.

In laboratory experiments in which rats were exposed to smoggy air, those that were given Vitamin C were protected from damage to their lungs while those that did not get the vitamin had lung disease after exposure.

Biochemist Dr. Richard A. Passwater, Ph.D., is intensely involved in cancer, aging and heart disease research. He is widely respected as author of "Super - nutrition," and the recently published "Super - nutrition for Healthy Hearts."

Dr. Passwater, too, recommends exercise as one of the best preventives of heart disease and heart attacks. He recommends "gearing up" your body with anti-oxidant, anti-radical vitamins, such as Vitamin E, which prevent the penetration of cell membranes by free-radical, fragments of molecules which are super reactive.

Selenium, the mineral, was high on the list of encouraged nutrients by most of the speakers. And Vitamins C, E and B complex were highly touted. Dr. Passwater says prudent males should take 800 units per day of Vitamin E, and those with heart disease should take 1600 units.

And the researcher ended his remarks with: "Avoid empty calories. Make every calorie count."

Another year for 'fundamentalists'

LIVERMORE — Most parents were well satisfied with the past year's experimental "fundamental" program at Michell School and principal Joe Mirci is expecting to continue it next year.

The Livermore Unified School District board will be reviewing Mirci's 67-page fundamental school report at their meeting tonight in the Education Center, 685 Las Positas Blvd.

The report reveals that some 85 per cent want their children enrolled in the same program next year. There were 93 per cent "satisfied" with receiving letter grades on the children's report cards, despite remarks from some teachers surveyed who didn't like the idea.

The report also shows that children in the conservative "fundamental" program, which stresses academic subjects and orderly classrooms, were on the average much poorer students to begin with than the children whose parents kept them in Michell's standard program, dubbed "basics plus" this year.

"Majority of students in program had academic problems," says the report.

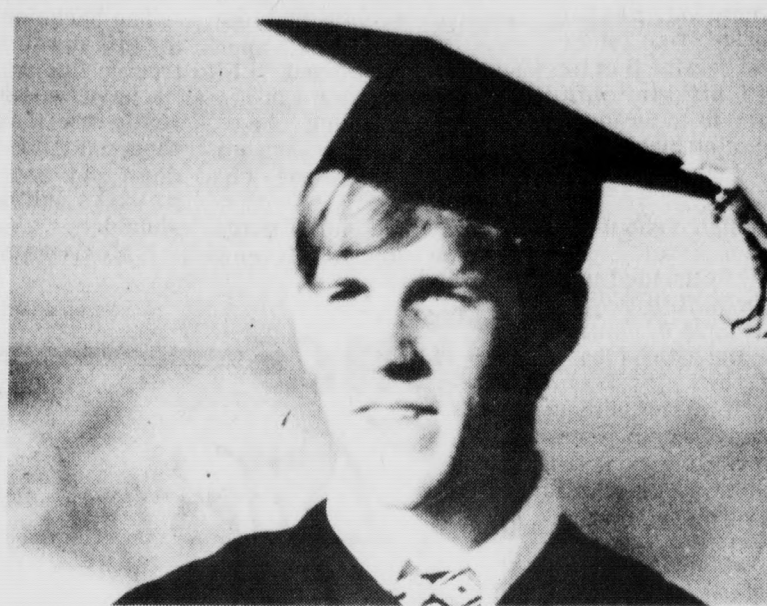

After six months in the fundamental program, the children had still not caught up with their "basics-plus" counterparts, although principal Mirci said yesterday learning appeared to be somewhat greater in a few areas of the fundamental program.

"There's no overall pattern," he added, pointing out that the school has only two classes in each of the programs at each grade level, making fine comparisons difficult.

Several teachers panned the school district administration and board for lack of involvement in the new project.

The fundamental school's strengths were listed as: "Minimal grade standards," parental selection of program, no differentiation among students in either program outside of class, continuity, favorable parent attitude and staff support.

Under "weaknesses" were listed losing three of the program's 12 teachers; failure of some parents to force their children to do homework; inability to admit children from outside the school neighborhood in many cases; no way to enforce flunking a child.

EBMUD says save water for next year's thirst

OAKLAND — Now that most people have gotten the hang of conserving water, East Bay Municipal Utilities District (EBMUD) is proposing we start saving some for next year.

"If next winter is as dry as last winter, Pardee Reservoir would remain virtually empty unless more water is saved for next year," stated John S. Harnett, EBMUD general manager.

Harnett and other EBMUD officials outlined current allotments that could produce long-range effects.

As of May 1, 1977, a household of three is allotted 225 gallons per day (gpd). For each additional person in that household, 35 gpd can be added to the standard allotment.

To obtain an increased amount you must apply in writing to an EBMUD business office.

A two-person household should use no more than 175 gpd although their water bill will show the basic 225 gallon allotment.

If you live alone, you should use no more than 135 gallons daily.

Regardless of your allotment, save as much water as possible, EBMUD officials stated in their newsletter sent to customers.

Your water bill will climb steeply if you use more than your allotment.

If you use over 625 gpd more than your allotment over a two-month billing period, EBMUD will notify you. If this consumption continues for the next 30 days, EBMUD may install a flow restrictor in your service line or discontinue service.

If summer visitors live in your home for several weeks, excess-use regulations will allow limited flexibility for such situations.

Valuable landscaping can be maintained through drip irrigation, re-use of gray water and letting lawns go brown.

EBMUD has printed material describing techniques for drought survival gardening and drip irrigation. This information may be picked up at EBMUD offices.

Exceeding your allotment on very hot days will make your water bill subject to high excess use charges.

If you need an allotment adjustment for medical reasons, contact your EBMUD business office.

Multiple dwellings of less than five units on one meter will be allotted 100 gpd for each unit, plus an additional 75 gpd for all units together. This includes duplexes, three and four-plexes served by one water meter.

Industrial process water will be allotted 80 per cent of last year's use.

Commercial and public authority customers will be allotted 70 per cent for interior use.

Irrigation and outdoor use will be cut back to 40 per cent of water consumption last year.

Apartments with five units or more will be cut to 65 per cent of their consumption last year.

EBMUD officials thank their customers for their "excellent" cooperation during this drought crisis.

Allen, Chicano tangle

Alameda County Bureau OAKLAND — BART Director Robert Allen and the president of the BART Latin Council are at odds over the board's "affirmative action" plan.

Alejandro M. Maldonado is calling for 65 per cent of all new hirings, promotions and training opportunities to be made available to Spanish Americans, and 40 per cent of those to Spanish American women.

He also wants a Chicano for BART Director of Employee Relations, and the screening of Spanish American employees' files "to truly identify the Spanish American by cultural origin, not by marriage."

But Allen, a political conservative, says he wants "color-blind hiring and promotion."

The "pool" of applicants should reflect the population, but "from them the best qualified to fill the job" should be chosen.

"Surname is not an appropriate standard by which to hire or promote," the director adds. "This is one of the many pitfalls of 'affirmative action' in practice."

And opening the files "could result in unwarranted invasion of privacy," General Manager Frank Herringer fills BART posts, declares Allen, and the Valley representative will not intervene.

BART speaker

LIVERMORE — Bay Area Rapid Transit District Director Robert Allen, the Valley's representative on the three-county board, will address the Livermore Kiwanis Club this evening at 7 o'clock.

Allen is scheduled to speak on the proposed "permanent" status of the half-cent sales tax paid in the BART district.

The state legislature currently is considering funneling the money to the Metropolitan Transportation Commission for administration.

Under Assembly Speaker Leo McCarthy's bill, BART would automatically get 70 per cent of the funds, with the balance going to AC Transit, the San Francisco Muni and BART.

Allen opposes the plan as "a drain of sales tax dollars from this valley to local transit systems over the hill and in San Francisco."

Building permits soaring

PLEASANTON — Three building permits for industrial buildings worth an estimated $854,800 topped the list of permits issued last month.

No permits were issued for any residential or commercial structures, but there were 45 for alterations, additions and repairs, four for signs and 15 for swimming pools. That activity plus a couple of other items brought the estimated increase in the city's assessed valuation to $1,128,811 and permit fees for the month to $4,009.50.

WHY ARE MOST ALLERGIES NOT CURED?

An allergy can be considered as a condition in which the body has a susceptibility to a substance which is harmless in similar amounts to the majority of persons. It is estimated that 10% of the population of the United States suffers from some form of allergy.

An allergy can be so severe it is life-threatening or mild enough to be merely irritating. An allergy can manifest itself as colitis or other digestive disturbance, commonly considered food allergy. The allergy can be manifested in the eyes and nose as hay fever, in the bronchii as asthma, or anywhere on the skin as a type of skin allergy. A person can suffer from severe, debilitating headaches or rapid heartbeat as the result of allergy.

The major problem in allergy treatment today is that most treatment is symptomatic in nature, designed to gain relief of symptoms. The real answer to an allergic reaction is to find the basic underlying cause which makes the body over-react to normal substances.

The simplistic approach - determining what an individual is allergic to by various testing methods, then eliminating that item from the individual's diet and environment - is similar to deciding to live in a cave as a hermit because you don't get along with people.

Many treatments for symptomatic relief actually make the basic underlying cause of the problem more severe.

Nasal sprays, which are used for decongesting the mucous membranes, work temporarily, however, they themselves irritate the mucous membranes. When the effect wears off it leaves the membranes more irritated, to swell worse the next time. The use of the spray causes an increased need for future medication.

Steroid medications, which are used to supplement the inactive adrenal gland, simply cause a further depletion of the adrenal gland. Longtime use of this therapy makes a patient very resistant, or non-responsive, to natural health care.

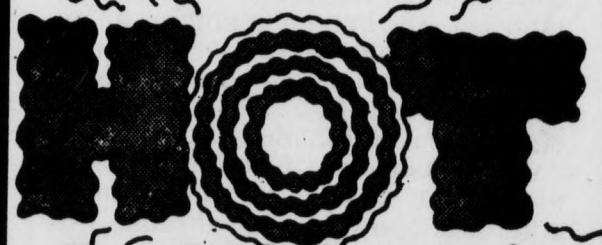

If allergies develop, it is important to seek a natural correction of the problem before permanent damage is done by medication.

Eric Hasseltine

Hasseltine's human touch

MARTINEZ — After sitting in a Contra Costa County supervisors seat for six months, Eric Hasseltine said he has made the improvement of human services his number one commitment.

Hasseltine is fifth district supervisor. His territory includes Danville, Alamo, Clayton, Brentwood, Oakley, Antioch, Pittsburg, West Pittsburg and the Contra Costa County portion of San Ramon.

"Human service type programs have not always been handled as efficiently as they should have been," Hasseltine reported. "There wasn't a total commitment to doing that part of the job by the previous board of supervisors. That's why other recently elected board members and myself are trying to set up a human services advisory commission."

He said the board of supervisors was in the process of selecting people to serve on the commission. They will advise the board on more effective ways of dealing with human service problems.

Hasseltine has also instigated the idea of forming a planning area commissions. He contends such commissions would give people more local control over development in their respective areas.

After some opposition from other board members, they finally approved setting up a two-year experimental program. The outcome will determine whether or not such commissions would be feasible. The San Ramon Valley was one area chosen for a trial run.

"We hope to get the feasibility study started by Oct 1," Hasseltine declared.

Setting up monthly liaison sessions in Danville, Clayton, West Pittsburg, Pittsburg, Antioch, Brentwood and Oakley is another feather in Hasseltine's supervisory cap.

During these sessions, Hasseltine reports to local citizens what he and the other supervisors have accomplished or are trying to accomplish. Citizens offer ideas and declare their needs.

Hasseltine listed bringing a new approach to the board as another accomplishment.

"All board members are asking more questions, challenging county staff, taking a second look at the traditional way of doing things. That doesn't necessarily mean we're always changing things. But we are trying to find out for ourselves the most appropriate and effective ways and means to meet community needs."

Hasseltine pointed out part of his supervisory duties made it necessary to serve on various agencies, boards and committees.

A few of the ones he listed include Local Agency Formation Commission (LAFCO), Alameda Contra Costa Health Systems Agency, Contra Costa representative to Delta Advisory Planning Council,

Mental Health Advisory board and Aviation Liaison Commission. He said he was also involved in animal control policies and internal operations of the board of supervisors.

He reported two of his toughest decisions to date involved his connection with LAFCO.

One was whether or not Blackhawk subdivision should be allowed to deannex from R-7 Park Area.

"The R-7 advisory board felt Blackhawk should remain in. Blackhawk people had good reasons to be out. LAFCO finally agreed to let Blackhawk out."

The other decision involved property Antioch and Pittsburg have been squabbling over for years, Hasseltine indicated. We have reached a tentative position by deciding to take the property away from both cities and leave it as an unincorporated area out of their spheres of influence, he said.

"If the property owners, Seeno Construction, decide to develop the land, they can ask for annexation to one city or the other."

Delving into the mysteries of county health care is high on the list of Hasseltine's priorities.

"This is a major concern in the county," he said.

Hasseltine admitted his relatively new job is far more time consuming than he had thought it would be.

"I underestimated the number of routine and daily requests from citizens. I would have some real trouble dealing with that if I didn't have a capable secretary and two volunteer assistants."

He said learning to apportion his time to the best advantage has been difficult.

"But someone in a position like this can't ever get in a situation where you tell people you're too busy. That must never happen."

Heartbreak

Planting trees takes a lot of work, a lot of love — and it's heartbreaking for those who care to see them destroyed. and it's heartbreaking for those who care to see them destroyed. Last weekend, vandals attacked six young trees at Jackson Avenue. School, killing most of them. Above, gardener Jim

Survey pegs woman's role

DENVER (AP) — Almost 30 per cent of 17-year-olds questioned in a nationwide survey believe that a woman's place is in the home. An additional 20 per cent think women should be allowed to work only under certain conditions.

The National Assessment of Educational Progress (NAEP), a project of the Education Commission of the States, asked 4,600 17-year-olds to expound in essays on their views of women's role in society. About 7 per cent of the essayists said women should remain at home because "that's the way it is." Four per cent said women were incapable of working.

One writer said that women might hurt themselves if they tried manual labor, then added: "The woman should stay at home so that she can cook, clean house and take care of the children because a majority of the women, while they are girls, are raised in an environment where they are taught to be a mother and housekeeper. Even in the Bible, the scriptures show the women is in the home while the man is in the fields working."

Another youngster wrote, however: "Women are human beings, it is their God-given right to pursue whatever career they desire."

The NAEP said the study showed predictable splits by sex in views about women's careers. Thirty-seven per cent of the males and 21 per cent of the females said that a woman's place is in the home. Conversely, 58 per cent of the females and 41 per cent of the males said women should work wherever they want.

The assessment group periodically surveys students at different ages to measure their mastery of basic skills. In a study on writing ability, the youngsters were asked to answer this essay question:

"Some people believe that a woman's place is in the home. Others do not. Take one side of this issue. Write an essay in which you state your position and defend it."

Seven year battle for shoreline still rages on

SACRAMENTO (AP) — California's landmark coastal protection act is nearly six months old, but some of those who fought to put the law on the books are doing little celebrating these days.

The seven-year battle over shoreline development is still on.

Builders complain the new law is being too broadly interpreted, but many environmentalists who have monitored the act's implementation are smelling defeat.

"There is no question that the coast is not being saved, and I think there is only a faint promise that it will be reprieved," says Norbert Dall, a coastal land-use coordinator for the Sierra Club.

"We have a coastal commission and we are still losing the coast foot by foot and mile by mile."

The coastal act took effect Jan. 1, creating a new regulatory body to replace the temporary commissions organized under a 1972 voters initiative.

The new law was described by the officials who drafted it as the toughest in the nation, and its passage was widely viewed as a significant environmental victory.

But Dall's pessimism is shared by other environmentalists, although their feelings are by no means universal. There appears to be widespread belief among developers that in many cases the law is being used too broadly.

"What they have done under the new law is to make it significantly more difficult to develop projects within a greatly expanded permit area," says Phil Walling, legislative representative of the Construction Industry Federation of San Diego County.

The act is an outgrowth of Prop. 20, the 1972 ballot measure approved by voters after an unsuccessful attempt to push coastal land-use controls through the legislature.

A growing concern that more and more of California's 1,100-mile-long coast was being overrun by urban sprawl sparked the campaign.

The law sets up an permanent statewide coastal commission and provides for the creation of six temporary regional commissions, which share responsibility for coastal management with local governments.

The state commissions act as front-line regulatory boards while local coastal governments draw up shoreline land-use plans based on the act's goals.

Once a city's or county's plan has been approved by the commissions, the city or county assumes responsibility in most cases for issuing construction permits in the coastal zone, with the state commission acting as an appeals board in certain cases.

The coastal zone varies from less than 1,000 yards in urban areas to five miles inland in some wetland, wildlife habitat and recreational areas.

Goals which local plans must stress include concentrating development in urban areas, protecting coastal farm land, maximizing shoreline access and protecting beach views.

There are also provisions requiring protection of wetlands and low-income housing and giving coastal-dependent facilities priority over other developments.

One reason many environmentalists are pessimistic about the law's ability to prevent overdevelopment is the fact it's primarily a planning act instead of a growth limitation law.

There are provisions designed to slow growth, to limit density and to preserve a few key areas. But there is nothing that allows commissioners to draw a line and say: "No more."

Some ecologists say the only sure way to preserve coastal open space in future decades may be for the government to buy vast amounts of land and development rights.

"You can read that whole law as a growth plan," says Naomi Schwartz, a state commissioner.

"There's really nothing there to preclude natural growth. What it dictates is planned accommodation of growth: citing energy facilities in least damaging places, keeping agricultural land for a growing state population."

There is also concern among environmentalists that as pressures mount for more coastal development, efforts of commissioners to control it will weaken or there will be attempts to water down the law.

Some environmentalists also complain commissioners routinely approve permits for single family homes without considering the cumulative impact of those projects.

There are no figures available on the number of permits approved by commissioners this year, but officials say the approval rate is about 90 per cent, the same as it was under Prop. 20 controls.

State commission chairman Mel Lane estimates 80 per cent of those permits are for "small residential type projects, something less than a subdivision."

"You would have to see where they are," he said when asked how the commissions could be preserving the coast while approving almost all permit requests.

"The great bulk of them are things that unfortunately even call for permits: infilling, building on vacant lots where there is more of the same."

But officials also note that commissioners often attach conditions to projects, such as limiting size or density, or shifting a building's location to preserve a view.

Just ask

The tipoff:

Although all the linemen they lost through injury last year are now recovered, the world champion Oakland Raiders are going to stick with the "Orange" or three-man front defensive alignment which took them through the Super Bowl. They'll pare the excess load of linemen by switching a couple to offense, trading others.

Q. Am I right in my impression that the baseball is livelier this year and that there are lots more home runs being hit in the major leagues? — J.P., Doylestown, Pa.

Officially, baseball always maintains that there are no changes in the ball, but someone down in Haiti, where the balls are now being made, is winding the string around them a lot tighter. By tabulation of the Elias Sports Bureau, which is the game's official statistician, home run output through May was 25 per cent higher than a year ago.

Q. Could you please tell me where I could write to Kareem Abdul-Jabbar? I think he is the best basketball player since Wilt Chamberlain, and I would like to know more about him and the Laker team. — John Cottier, Pittsburg, Calif.

You write to Kareem at the Forum, Inglewood, Calif. 90306. I would like to amend your statement. I think it's time to recognize the Laker's center as the best ever in basketball, including Wilt and Bill Russell. He was the Laker's team this year, and it's amazing they got as far as they did, with the best regular season record in the NBA. Lack of a supporting cast showed up in the playoffs against Portland.

Q. The 1949 Philadelphia Athletics were not a spectacular team, finishing fifth in a relatively weak league. Alex Kellner was the only pitcher of repute, winning 20 games. Yet according to the Guinness Book of Records, the A's made 217 double plays, and that still stands as the record. What would be the reason for a nondescript team doing so well in double plays? The pitching was not so good, and the infield was not well known (Majeski, Joost, Suder, Fain). — John DeVore, Thousand Oaks, Calif.

First, Eddie Joost and Pete Suder were a good double play combination. Second, Nellie Fox, breaking in as a rookie that season, played half the time at second base. Finally, the fact of the mediocre pitching contributed to the record because there were always men on base — an essential element for double plays.

Q. Can you tell me some of the things Pat Williams, the general manager of the Philadelphia 76ers, has done to stimulate interest in pro basketball in the area? — L.R., Philadelphia, Pa.

Pat has always been an aggressive promoter in sports, starting from the time he was a minor league baseball executive. "The key to promotion," he says, "is the atmosphere you create — warmth and fervor." Among the stunts he's pulled in the Spectrum for tangential entertainment are wrestling bears, singing pigs, trained seals and dogs, a hot dog eating girl and one-armed pushup contestants. On a personal level, Pat as an executive doesn't have screen phone calls and opens his own mail. He also doesn't have his own seat in the building for games. The 76ers averaged 15,500 this year. Oh yes, the main thing done to stimulate interest was spending a couple of million bucks for Julius (Dr. J) Erving.

Q. Who is this rookie running back Ted McKnight drafted by the Oakland Raiders? Do they really think he'll help the champs? — N.S., Alameda, Calif.

The Raiders feel they got one of the sleepers in the entire pro football draft when they tapped the running back from the University of Minnesota-Duluth. He was the NCAA Division II ground-gaining champion. He is six-one and a half and weighs 204 pounds, and assistant coach Tom Flores, who went back to Duluth to check him out, timed McKnight in 4.5 seconds for the 40-yard dash, running in gym shoes indoors.

Parting shot:

Charlie Finley cutting ticket prices in half for the bulk of his games is just an admission of the basic weakness of the product, since baseball to start with is the cheapest major sports entertainment.

RENO, Nev. — Kris Franklin led the Livermore Aquacowboys contingent of eight swimmers with four first place finishes at the Reno Invitational Swim Meet here over the weekend.

Franklin won the 100 free in the A-AA division with a 55.97 clocking as well as the 200 free in 1:59.37, the 100 fly in 1:02.36 and the 500 free in 5:09.94. She was second in the 200 IM at 2:21.07, third in the 50 free at 26.72 and seventh in the 100 breast at 1:21.22.

In the 11-12 girls ranks, Susie Boyes placed in a pair of events, nailing down second in the B 100 back (1:21.77) and a sixth Leiden, in the A-AA's, paddled to a 1:20.39, good for seventh in the 100 breast.

For the boys in that age group, Kevin Kyle was seventh in the A-AA 100 fly at 1:15.8. B swimmer Eric Russell was third in the 100 fly (1:20.13), fourth in the 50 free (31.34) and 100 free (1:07.24) and seventh in the 100 back (1:23.48).

Jack Trudeau pitched a shutout and upped his record to 5-0 as Columbus Realty remained undefeated in 13 games, whipping the Firefighters, 4-0, in Livermore Babe Ruth baseball over the weekend.

Carl Dice had three hits for the Realtors, while Rich Mueller had two. Mark Wagner added two singles and Mike O'Shea one. Blake Scamba doubled

Expos dump
Cubs twice

It was another case of being in the right place at the wrong time for the Tri-Valley Cubs Sunday, as they dropped a doubleheader to the Oakland Expos in California Baseball Association play, 2-0 and 10-5.

The first game went down as a league defeat for the Cubs, who have lost all three of their CBA encounters by pencil — thin margins. A total of four runs have separated the Cubs from a perfect season, their previous losses having been by scores of 6-5 and 13-12.

"We played a good ball game out there," referred Cub general manager John McCuaig to his team's sterling defensive play, "but we just didn't get the hits in here."

"They're a well-organized team," he continued. "They have a lot of guys from Cal playing for them."

John Hughes pitched eight innings of three-hit ball in the opener, getting an inning of relief help from Dale Benson to notch the 2-0 win.

The Cubs' best chances at scoring came in the first and fourth innings. Dean Busch stroked a ground rule double over the left-field fence in the first inning, but two men were already out. Mike Carey fled to left to end the stanza.

In the fourth, Bob Chapman singled and Busch was hit by a pitch, but Carey fanned and Scott Ellis hit into a double play on a sharp grounder up the middle to snuff the threat.

The Expos, meanwhile, pounded 12 hits off losing hurler John Prieto but could only push two runs across the plate, only one of which was earned.

John Hughes (not to be mistaken for John Hughes) stroked a one-out single and stole second, scoring with two outs on a triple by Mitch Milosovitch.

In the sixth inning, Dave Milosovitch rapped a single with one out and went to third on an infield error on a ball hit by his brother Mitch. Bob Haight's sacrifice fly to left brought home the run to make it 2-0.

Clint Martin had the Cubs' only other hit in the first game.

The second contest saw the Cubs battle the Expos to a 4-4 standoff after seven innings, but Oakland came up with six runs in the eighth to post the 10-5 win.

while Randy Johnson and Scott Cole singled for the Fighters.

Jim Davis had three hits and three RBI, Tony Fairlee two hits and two RBI, and Mike Miller two hits as the Elks gored Jack-In-The-Box, 14-6.

Greg Sundahl was the winning pitcher.

Fred Stayton doubled twice to drive in a run for Jacks while losing pitcher

Glen Bowers was the big stick for the winners, pounding out three hits and getting on base five times. Jim Yamada had two hits and three RBIs to add to the cause.

The Cubs received a triple and single from Jim Florence, who scored three runs, while Prieto rapped three singles and drove in a pair of runs.

The Cubs will take a rest this week before returning to CBA action against the Oakland Ravens on June 26 at Dublin High School.

Two years ago, Leo Camarillo was acclaimed the top cowboy in the world. But, when he got to the Livermore Rodeo last year, he rode in the "slacks", the term for the morning competition which few, if any spectators look in on.

But, this weekend, Camarillo stepped back into the valley limelight, copping Sunday's calf-roping event with a time of 20.7 as the rodeo finished up its stay in Livermore.

Second was Dan Torcellias at 21.2 and third was Bucky Bradford at 22.9.

Wild mule riding proved to be a tough event as only two riders were able to stay aboard long enough to receive a score.

When his time was up, Ken Mendoza had first place with a 113 score while Warren Smith was second at 105.

Marysville's Joe Alexander took the bareback riding contest with a 79 with Rollie Wilson, aboard One Eyed Jack, second with a 75. Third was Royce Smith, who rode Stub for a 73.

In saddle bronc riding, Sam Yarbrough got the honors, racking up 76 points on top of Frontier Airlines. Just a point back was Steve Schnable, who rode Zipper for 75 points and Jerry Hixon was third, with Dynamite under him, with 73 points.

Don McGuire was the steer wrestling king with a 9.5 clocking, beating Demar Thurman by three-tenths of a second. W.J. Jones was third, but well back at 10.5.

In the Professional Rodeo Cowboys Association team roping championship event, Tommy Rogers and Ed Baalam beat out their nearest competition by nearly two seconds to win in a time of 12.8.

Second were Frank Ferreira Sr. and Dennis Taylor, who clocked a 14.6 to come out ahead of the third place team, Ed Hinds and Jeff Barnby, who timed 15.3.

In the local team roping event, it was Melvin Castello and Tim Peterson winning in 26.7, nearly twice as good as the second place team, Jim Souza and John Banke, who were timed in 50 flat. Ken Wagner and Don Calderio were third with a 52.6. Ben and Lynn Peterson were fourth in the average standings with a 1:01.9.

Brad Santucci was the wild cow milking champ, bottling up 88 points worth of the white stuff, well outdistancing his nearest rival, Ron Batleate, who scored a 66 and Donald Stayia, who had a 44.

Herb Swartwoudt and son captured the first go-round of the local team roping, but couldn't place in the final standings. Also doing well in the first go-round, but failing to place were Charlie and Bobbie Telles, who went 12.2 in the go-round.

Clown Seth Doulton was racked up by a steer during Sunday's competition and was taken to Valley Memorial Hospital with damage to his ribs.

Bowl leaders are unscathed

All but one of the previous leaders held their position in the Granada Bowl's Youth — Adult tournament in Livermore over the weekend.

The one exception was the Prep-Adult division, in which Rich Pine and his son Rick, of Fremont, took over first with a score of 1191 to move Livermore's Staci Aguilar, 10, and mother Linda Snodgrass into second at 1127.

Ranking third is the father and daughter team of Bob and Lisa Young who have a competitive score of 1125, just a couple of pins back of third.

Livermore's Stacie Young and Tom Crane hung on to first place in the Adult-Pee Wee division with a 1204 that held off a challenge from Tom and Steve Poe of Fremont, who have a 1142 score.

Don Bastian and Jim Beattie retain the lead in the Adult-Junior category with a 1333 with Paul Linnes and mother Janet Linnes in third at 1277.

In the Adult — Major class, the only change was 16-year old Bonnie Nobriga teaming with Rene Drumtra to take over second at 1247. Bastian and Ben Garrison are in first with a handicap total of 1359.

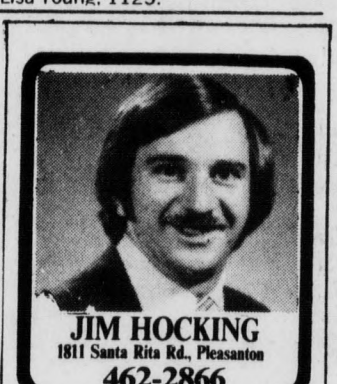

The tournament is coming up on its third and final weekend with squads Friday at 6:30 and Saturday and Sunday squads at 11:30 a.m., 2 p.m. and 4 p.m.

YOUTH-ADULT LEADERS
Major-Adult Division — Don Bastian and Ben Garrison, 1359; Rene Drumtra and Bonnie Nobriga, 1247; Bill Booher and Jeff Strah, 1225.

A's Sunday punch floors Detroit, 7-1

OAKLAND — Pitcher Vida Blue and manager Bobby Winkles of the Oakland A's were beginning to wonder if either would be involved in another winning baseball game this season.

Blue changed all that with a four-hitter Sunday as he and the A's defeated the Detroit Tigers, 7-1.

It was the first victory for Blue in more than a month and the first for Winkles since he took over as the A's manager Friday. Blue had lost five games in a row and Winkles was winless in two tries as the A's manager.

"I'll take a victory any way I can get it," said Blue, now 4-7 on the season. "My mind was messed up early in the season and I wasn't thinking about baseball. This time, I decided to think positive and just go out there and pitch."

Blue had a one-hit shut-out until the sixth inning when a single by Rusty Staub and a double by Jason Thompson gave the Tigers their only run.

The A's scored four unearned runs off Detroit starter Dave Rozema, now 6-3, in the second inning.

The A's loaded the bases on consecutive singles by Jeff Newman, Rob Piccolo and Bill North. An error by Tiger shortstop Tom Verzer let two runs score and another error by Thompson gave Oakland two other runs in the inning.

"You can't give Blue a 5-0 lead and expect to win," Detroit manager Ralph Houk said. "The errors killed us. Rozema had pitched very well every other time this season."

"That's the hardest I have seen him throw in several years," Verzer said of Blue, who threw a one-hitter at Detroit last year. "We were overmatched."

Meanwhile, in last night's American League action:

Royals 8, Yankees 3 — George Brett scored from first base on a bloop single and later bashed a two-run homer and Darrell Porter drove in three runs to lead Kansas City to its romp in New York.

Red Sox 5, White Sox 4 — Carlton Fisk lined a long single with the bases loaded in the bottom of the 10th inning to lift the Sox to a 6-4 victory.

SF refuses Cub largesse

CHICAGO — "They made mistakes today, which at least proves they are human," said San Francisco manager Joe Altobelli Sunday after the Chicago Cubs had come from behind to defeat the Giants, 6-5, for a sweep of their four-game series.

"They made mistakes, but we didn't capitalize," said Altobelli. "They wanted to give it to us, but we didn't take it."

The Cubs made two errors which led to three unearned San Francisco runs; they had two runners thrown out at the plate and a potential tie-breaking run was picked off second base in the eighth inning.

To top it all off, relief ace Bruce Sutter wasn't sharp, but still managed to pick up his second win to go along with his major-league leading total of 17 saves.

But when it was all over, the first-place Cubs had posted their sixth victory in their last seven games and their 29th in 39 starts since May 1. They have lost the fewest games and have the highest percentage in the major leagues.

Sutter took over in the eighth and got into trouble when Terry Whitfield beat out a bunt single and stole second. Marc Hill then lashed a line shot to left and Gene Clines, playing near the line because "I know he's a strong pull hitter" hauled it in.

Clines saved the best for the next batter. Jack Clark, on whom he made a diving catch to prevent the lead run from scoring.

"Those two catches were the breaks that went against us," groaned Altobelli. "When things go wrong, they go wrong."

Ivan DeJesus led off the Cub eighth with a double but was promptly picked off by Hill as Clines was attempting a sacrifice bunt.

In last night's National League action:

Expos 5, Astros 2 — Santo Alcala handcuffed Houston with just six hits through seven innings and Montreal put down an eighth-inning rally to win.

Reds 5, Phillies 4 — Dan Driscoll led off the bottom of the ninth with his sixth home run of the season, giving the Cincinnati Reds the win over Philadelphia.

San Fran 6, Chicago 5 — Bruce Sutter wasn't sharp, but still managed to pick up his second win to go along with his major-league leading total of 17 saves.

But when it was all over, the first-place Cubs had posted their sixth victory in their last seven games and their 29th in 39 starts since May 1. They have lost the fewest games and have the highest percentage in the major leagues.

Sutter took over in the eighth and got into trouble when Terry Whitfield beat out a bunt single and stole second. Marc Hill then lashed a line shot to left and Gene Clines, playing near the line because "I know he's a strong pull hitter" hauled it in.

Clines saved the best for the next batter. Jack Clark, on whom he made a diving catch to prevent the lead run from scoring.

"Those two catches were the breaks that went against us," groaned Altobelli. "When things go wrong, they go wrong."

Ivan DeJesus led off the Cub eighth with a double but was promptly picked off by Hill as Clines was attempting a sacrifice bunt.

In last night's National League action:

Expos 5, Astros 2 — Santo Alcala handcuffed Houston with just six hits through seven innings and Montreal put down an eighth-inning rally to win.

Reds 5, Phillies 4 — Dan Driscoll led off the bottom of the ninth with his sixth home run of the season, giving the Cincinnati Reds the win over Philadelphia.

Dr. Joyce Brothers

DEAR DR. BROTHERS: My son's wife is suing for a divorce on grounds of incompatibility. She also claims he's been unfaithful, but my son tells me this isn't so. He blames their troubles directly on her working. I believe the women's movement is at fault and I should think the women involved would suffer terrible guilt. If my daughter-in-law hadn't gone to work, I'm sure they would have had children by now and then everything would have been all right. Young women today seem to want everything. I hope his next wife is the old-fashioned kind. — S.T.

DEAR S.T.: You and your son may be opposed to women working but I doubt that this was the sole cause of your son's marital problems. Men who violently oppose their wives' going out into the world, either for further education or to get jobs, usually have rather shaky egos, and this can contribute to instability in a marriage.

Sociologist Elwood Carlson found that today work for women is coming to be associated with stable rather than unstable marriages. Among women in their late teens and early 20s, 84 per cent of the working wives remained married, compared with 82 per cent of their nonworking peers.

People have assumed that working wives make marriages unstable, because in the past, the increase in broken marriages coincided with a parallel increase in the number of working wives. Coincidence, Dr. Carlson points out, is not cause.

When a marriage fails, there are almost always multiple causes. Your son and you ought to be glad that no children are involved. Contrary to your views, children do not strengthen weak marriages.

DEAR DR. BROTHERS: Three of my close friends have been mugged in our own area in the past year. The last case involved a man who must have been on drugs because my friend said he seemed irrational. He held a knife at her throat and she was extremely fortunate to have escaped. Is there anything we can do to protect ourselves if we realize we're about to be attacked? — M.L.

DEAR M.L.: Obviously it isn't always possible but, the best protection against crime is to try to avoid dangerous situations. You can take the precaution, however, of avoiding dark streets, or if you must go on one, walk down the middle of it until you reach your destination. If you live in a high crime area, try not to go out after dark unless you are with a friend. Never set yourself up as a perfect victim by walking alone if you're intoxicated.

If you happen to be caught in a hallway or room with a violent person, don't challenge him. Allow him plenty of body space. Never try to crowd him, or move in any way that might seem threatening or aggressive.

Dr. Thomas Hackett, the chief of psychiatry at Massachusetts General Hospital, suggests that you never look your assailant in the eye because a violent, disturbed person is apt to consider this a challenge. Blink, look away, or rub your eyes, rather than get caught up in any kind of staring contest.

Don't lecture or express hostility. You can make it harder for a potential assailant to attack if you're outwardly friendly. If you're trapped, anything you can think of to stall for time is helpful.

Passive resistance may sometimes work. Pretending to faint, vomiting or tears may help to defuse a violent, mentally unbalanced person. With this particular kind of attacker, weakness can be your strongest defense.

Johnny Wonder's QUESTION CORNER

Q. "WHAT CAUSES WINDOWS TO FROST IN WINTER?"

LOREN GILL
MT. OLIVE, IL

A.

ON VERY COLD NIGHTS, WHEN THE DAMP AIR TOUCHES A CHILLED WINDOWPANE, SOME OF THE MOISTURE IN THE AIR FREEZES INTO TINY ICE CRYSTALS THAT FORM FROSTY PATTERNS ON THE WINDOW.

On cold wintry mornings, you often find the windowpanes of your house covered by lacy designs of frost. Frost is made up of tiny crystals of ice, and the ice came from the moisture floating about in the air.

When the damp air touches the freezing-cold windowpane, some of the moisture in the air also becomes chilled. The tiny specks of water suddenly freeze into frosty crystals of ice that may spread in feathery designs and lacy patterns across the windowpane.

The ice crystals have a special structure which gives them a pattern. The kind of pattern frost makes seems to depend on the temperature.

In addition, the icy patterns may start to grow along tiny scratches in the glass or collect in a certain way around specks of dust on the window. Air currents also help create the frosty designs. When the air grows warmer, the moisture that formed the frost evaporates and disappears into the air.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Speak as highly today of someone when they're not present as when they are. It's not in character for you to practice duplicity.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Should a well-meaning friend want to plead your cause in a career matter today, try to talk him out of it. His bumbling may have adverse effects.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) You've zeroed in on what you want to accomplish today, but there's one problem. You could use very ineffectual methods to go after it.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) A sharp salesman could palm off some inferior merchandise on you today. You don't pay enough attention to warranties, guarantees or quality.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) The family budget could be in for lumps today. Neither you nor your better half are very efficient when it comes to handling money.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Decisions offering an easy way out aren't the best for you today. Unfortunately, you may be tempted to try the "no sweat" route.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Normally you're a no-nonsense person at work. Today you're easily distracted and may indulge in dawdling or daydreaming.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Don't have fun today at the expense of another. Such conduct could cause more serious consequences than appear on the surface.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) You might impulsively make some decorative changes around home today. Be careful what you do or buy; it could be hard to live with.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Take care what you say today. A flippancy remark could offend someone and you may have difficulty explaining you meant no harm.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Today you're not as quality-conscious as you usually are. You may pay too much for an item of little durability or value.

Just look at your hand and dummy and plan your play at any heart contract. It looks simple enough unless trumps break 5-0, but we will tell you about trumps. They break 3-2 like nice trump suits should.

Now the entire play is in the club suit. If you lose one club trick you make six; if you lose two, you make five. Offhand, it looks as if there is a simple line of play. First lead a club from dummy, play your king and later on try a finesse for the jack with dummy's 10.

There is a better line of play. Start by playing three rounds of trumps. Then cash your spades and diamonds to come down to a four-card ending. Meanwhile, if you have counted you will know that West is holding two spades and two clubs while East is holding four of the five clubs he started with.

Now you lead a club toward dummy and rise with the queen. East takes his ace and leads the suit back whereupon you duck. This line wins unless West's two clubs were jack-small.

Talented

Amy Kolander and Deena Kendrick of Livermore have won first place in the Junior Division at the Vacaville Fiesta Days Talent Show. They were awarded each a trophy and $25 for being the best of 60 acts to audition. They performed a synchronized acrobatic routine which also won first place in the Sacramento Northern California State Talent competition and first place in the Santa Clara State Talent competition. They take lessons from Carol Jean Dance Studio.

Still on television, 'can't do nothing'

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The other night Buddy Ebsen used the Tony Awards show and words from a Broadway melody to tell why he will never retire. The theme of the annual Broadway Tony awards was survival, something Ebsen, "Barnaby Jones" on the CBS detective series, knows a lot about. He first started out as a dancer in 1928 in Ziegfeld's "Whoopee."

Ebsen's song was "September Song" from "Knickerbocker Holiday." "I don't consider 'September Song' a survivor song, but there is one line which expresses why I'll never retire," he said. "That's 'these few golden days I'll spend with you.'"

The 69-year-old Ebsen, about to enter his sixth season as the foxy grandpa detective, said, "After this I'll just get into something else. Some other job. I can't do nothing."

Ebsen said he would like to write. "I have about six plays and I want to write 'My First 50 Years in Show Business,'" Ebsen said. "My mother, God bless her, saved every letter from 1928 on. Every clipping, pictures. She squirreled it all away."

He's already written at least one play, "The Champagne General," about Civil War General George McClellan, and he is working with his daughter, Bonnie, on a script for "Barnaby Jones."

He said he has more time for writing since the addition of Mark Shera as his partner. "I said we have two clever people on the show, Lee Meriwether and Mark Shera. I said why don't you do a number of shows in which they carry the load. They agreed to that and it gives me more time to do the things I want to do."

One of the things he devotes his time to is building catamaran boats. After finishing last season he helped deliver two boats to Florida. They had to take the boats through the Gulf of Mexico area he called "the hijacking triangle" because of the disappearance of boats in the area. Many sources believe the yachts were hijacked by drug smugglers.

When they got to that area one boat was taken overland and Ebsen helped sail the other to Sarasota, Fla.

"I figured if we were going to have trouble it would be someone following us out of port," he said. "Our first night out of Apalachicola, on the same course taken by one of the yachts that disappeared, we saw running lights behind us. They stayed right behind us."

With a twinkle in the eye, he said, "I began to wonder what Barnaby Jones would do. So I said, 'What say we turn out our running lights and change course.' We did that and steered 30 degrees off our rhumb line to Sarasota. We saw the lights stay on the original course. We'll never know who they were, but it was a relief to be rid of them."

Campsites for July 4 are half full already

SACRAMENTO — Reservations for state park campsites during the Fourth of July weekend are being filled rapidly, State Parks and Recreation Director Herbert Rhodes said.

Half the campgrounds in the State Park System are already fully reserved. Holiday reservations are particularly heavy along the coast from San Diego to Humboldt Counties and in the Lake Tahoe area.

Some state park campgrounds do not take reservations and have family campsites available on a first-come, first-served basis, but Rhodes noted that starting a holiday weekend camping trip without a reservation can easily end in disappointment, with all available campsites filled by the time the vacationing group arrives.

When state park campgrounds are filled, park personnel will advise vacationers regarding other campgrounds that might still have available campsites, whether at other state park units, campgrounds operated by other government agencies or private campgrounds.

Reservation may be made through Saturday for the following weekend at any of the many Ticketron outlets in California. To learn the address of the nearest Ticketron outlet, in

Machine helps link deaf with county

OAKLAND — An important communications link has been achieved for the deaf in Alameda County with the donation of a teletype for the county's information and referral system.

Now any of an estimated 100 deaf persons with teletypes in their homes or hundreds of others with access to a machine may call the Social Services Agency's information and Referral (I & R) service on a special line, 835-DEAF.

Instead of voice communication, the caller and information worker will "talk" on the printed page of their teletype units. The I & R system is a toll-free access point for all Alameda County residents who seek personal help or information about hundreds of public and private non-profit agencies and organizations.

Donated by Pacific Telephone via the Telephone Pioneers service organization, the teletype unit at 401 Broadway in Oakland opens up new communication possibilities for the deaf.

Not only will they be able to access the information and referral system, according to Manager Barbara Hellmuth, but the deaf may also ask I & R workers to make calls in their behalf and to relay messages to others.

Lou Marracci, community service chairman for the Telephone Pioneers, said Pacific Telephone has made several such donations in the past and that the Pioneers are "trying to make it easier for agencies to get teletypes so that they can give service to the deaf."

The Alameda County Sheriff's Office, for example, handles emergency calls on a former phone company machine at 357-2663.

Toll-free numbers for other calls to the Information and Referral service are 451-0800 for Northern Alameda County, 487-0500 for the South County and 829-3100 for the Livermore Valley area.

LEGAL NOTICE

INTERSTATE COMMERCE COMMISSION NOTICE
AB 12 (Sub No. 39)
SOUTHERN PACIFIC TRANSPORTATION COMPANY
ABANDONMENT BETWEEN
CONCORD AND DOUGHERTY, IN CONTRA COSTA AND
ALAMEDA COUNTIES,
CALIFORNIA

May 31, 1977
The Interstate Commerce Commission hereby gives notice that its Section of Energy and Environment has concluded that the proposed abandonment by the Southern Pacific Transportation Company of its line between Concord and Dougherty, a distance of 19.5 miles, in Contra Costa and Alameda Counties, Calif., if approved by the Commission, does not constitute a major Federal action significantly affecting the quality of the human environment within the meaning of the National Environmental Policy Act of 1969 (NEPA), 42 U.S.C. Section 4321, et seq., and that preparation of a detailed environmental impact statement is not required under section 4332(2)(C) of the NEPA.

It was concluded, among other things, that traffic from the line would be diverted to motor carriers resulting in degradation of air quality and increases in energy consumption. Congestion problems on major arterials could be exacerbated during peak commuter hours. However, in light of the close proximity of alternative rail service and declining traffic volumes, the overall impact would not be significant. Although abandonment would affect industrial development of the Bishop Ranch property by reducing the diversity of industries which would locate there, full development should not be precluded. Alternative transportation is available in the area and the industries which have traditionally located in the region are not heavy rail users. Consequently, the action is not expected to have a serious adverse impact on community development.

A determination has been made that the right-of-way would be suitable for public use. Several governmental agencies have expressed interest in acquiring the right-of-way for a variety of public purposes, including recreational trails, utility corridor, mass transit purposes and continued rail corridor.

This conclusion is contained in a staff prepared environmental threshold assessment survey, which is available on request to the Interstate Commerce Commission, Office of Proceedings, Washington, D.C. 20423; telephone 202-755-1111.

Interested persons may comment on this matter by filing their statements in writing with the Interstate Commerce Commission, Washington, D.C. 20423, on or before July 13, 1977.

It should be emphasized that the environmental threshold assessment survey represents an evaluation of the environmental issues in the proceeding and does not purport to resolve the issue of whether the proposed abandonment is in the public interest or for public convenience and necessity, permit discontinuance of the line proposed for abandonment. Consequently, comments on the environmental study should be limited to discussion of the presence or absence of environmental impacts and reasonable alternatives.

We've discovered the way to keep natural taste in, artificial out. All the taste and flavor in Real is natural.

Of course Real's menthol is fresh, natural. Not synthetic.

You get a rich, satisfying smoke.
Taste you can feel. Full, natural taste.

So taste your first low tar natural cigarette. Taste Real...smoke natural.
